ROBIN BUHRKE

he 1996 Convention is upon us. If you haven't yet done so, make your plans now to come to Toronto. This year's convention program has a panoply of events related to lesbian, gay, and bisexual issues in psychology. As you will see later in this issue, the Division 44 convention program is filled with symposia, papers, and presentations. In addition, the 1996 Public Interest Directorate Miniconvention is on Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns in Psychology. Not too many years ago, it was quite easy to take in all of the lesbian, gay, and bisexual-related events at APA. This year, doing so would be not only exhausting, but impossible. As I look over the convention program, I feel tremendously excited about the vast array of events on tap for the convention. There's something for almost everyone.

With the excitement of convention comes transitions. At convention the division will be transitioning to a new set of very able leaders, and I will be transitioning to a new role. This is one time when being considered an "elder" is welcome. While I have enjoyed leading the division over the past year, I look forward to new challenges and opportunities to move our agenda forward.

The past year has been a good one for the division. We have made some important strides in our efforts to be more inclusive and welcoming to those of us who are ethnic minorities and who are bisexual. We continue to wrestle with how to address issues of inclusiveness in meaningful and lasting ways. We have taken action, we must continue to make the most of each opportunity before us, we must monitor our progress, and we must adjust our strategies accordingly. Acknowledging that race is an issue everywhere in this country is not enough. Knowing that many organizations struggle with inclusiveness around bisexuality and transgendered issues is not sufficient. We must continue to examine our own biases, stereotypes, and assumptions, and work together to make the division more welcoming and affirming of all.

We have made some important strides in our efforts to be more inclusive and welcoming to those of us who are ethnic minorities and who are bisexual.

We must also continue to work to advance our issues beyond the division and CLGBC. We have successfully begun the process of branching out to work other lesbian, gay, and bisexual organizations and lesbian, gay, and bisexual caucuses within other professional organizations, but the process is one that takes vigilance and persistence. And, we must look beyond our walls of safety and work to secure our "place" at all tables. For while we have come a great distance within the division and in many facets of APA, we continue to have a long way to go before our equality and protection is fully realized. We need look no further than the reactions to the Hawaii marriage lawsuit — while it took two government shutdowns and the threat of more to pass the budget through Congress, it took less than a week for legislators to introduce and hold hearings for a federal anti-gay marriage bill. Clearly we still have a long way to go.

I have no doubts, however, that in the long run we will prevail. Rarely are rights granted without a fight, and the battles that we wage are part of the process of change. Already we can mark our progress in the division, in this country and in our lives. But we cannot do it alone. In the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., "We've got to give ourselves to this struggle until the end. Nothing would be more tragic than to stop at this point We've got to see it through ... either we go up together, or we go down together."

Finally, I can't tell you how much I have enjoyed serving as your president. This past year has been an honor, a privilege, and a pleasure. Thank you for making it possible.

Editor's Note

emembering the last APA Convention held in Toronto, I look forward to seeing old friends, visiting old haunts and to the intellectual nourishment which I know attendance at convention will provide. The 104th Annual APA Convention will be a particularly exciting event for the membership of Division 44. This year, a Miniconvention on Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Concerns in Psychology will be presented by The Public Interest Directorate of the APA. The comprehensive program of events is presented in this newsletter on page 11. The program begins with the Division 44 Pre-Convention Continuing Education Workshop. Isiaah Crawford, the Continuing Education Chair, will be presenting a CE workshop on Teaching Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Psychology. Any of us who are or may become involved in education will want to take the opportunity to attend this workshop on Thursday, August 8. A full description and registration form are included in this newsletter.

A very special thank you is in order to B.J. Rye for providing us with information about accommodations, bookstores, and activities in Toronto which are of interest to lesbian/gay/bisexual people. Anyone who is uncertain about where to stay or what to do in Toronto can take a look at page 17 for some good, inexpensive ideas. Of course there may still be room in the Division 44 Hospitality Suite for graduate students who wish to attend the convention and are short on funds. See the Communications section of this newsletter for more information.

The deadline for all submissions for the Fall, 1996 issue of the newsletter is September 15. Please make a note in your calendars.

Hope to see you in Toronto!

Phil

* Correction: In the Fall, 1995 edition of the newsletter, we incorrectly listed Pat Hawkins as having won the 1995 Distinguished Contribution to the Profession Award. Pat Hawkins won the CLGC Outstanding Achievement Award. Harold Kooden won the Division 44 1995 Distinguished Contribution to the Profession Award.

Secretary-Treasurer Report

STEVE JAMES

The Division's income for the first quarter of this year (Q1,FY96) is higher than the income for the same quarter last year (Q1, FY95) by 4.4% ($27,351 compared to $26,188) and our spending was less than in Q1, FY95 by 22.7% ($9,064 compared to $11,722). This drop in expenditures reflects savings on the Executive Committee's Winter Meeting. While holding the meeting in Washington, DC this year cost more in travel (an increase of $2,012 or 38% over FY95), savings on hotel and meeting rooms ($3,840 or 77% in savings over FY95) more than compensated. This was accomplished by meeting in the APA office building and receiving a discount from a hotel used by APA.

The savings ($3,840) to the Division by having the EC Winter Meeting in Washington, and using the APA offices and hotel discount, represents approximately 8.6% of the total expenditures budgeted for FY96. If we include the higher travel costs ($2,012), there is still a net savings for the EC meeting over FY95 of $1,828. That represents about 4% of the FY96 budget for the Division.

State of the Membership

On May 1, 1996, the Division database was purged of over 270 student and affiliate members who failed to renew their dues for 1996. In many cases, the members had been "carried on the books" since 1994 even though their dues remained unpaid. We would invite them to reapply for membership and welcome their energy as we continue to promote the goals and mission of the Division. As of this writing, the figures from APA concerning those members and associates who have not paid their dues for 1996 has not been received but we expect more losses.

On the other hand, the news is not all bad. Fifteen new members have taken advantage of our trial, half-price membership and over 150 individuals have joined since the beginning of the year. In addition, almost 15 students have taken advantage of the Division's graduation "gift" by upgrading to member with a year's free membership. We welcome you and congratulate you on the hard work and effort in acquiring your doctorate.

The following table details the membership categories and the number of members in each category.

Membership Type Number of Members

Grand Total:	1462

Confidential Membership Lists

As many of you know, the list of student-affiliates and affiliates is confidential and is not released to anyone. Many members have raised the question as to the reasoning behind "hiding" or shielding two classes of membership from public consumption. First, we have, and invite, members from the military and from religious schools that could face legalized discrimination (and a form of gaybashing) should their membership become public knowledge. Until these members are protected by law, we will continue to protect them from those who would seek to harm them.

Second, the Executive Committee has approved the publication of a directory for all student-affiliates and affiliates who desire inclusion. With the 1997 dues statement, mailed in October of 1996, these members will have the opportunity to sign a waiver to indicate their desire to be placed in the directory. Thus, those members who prefer to be "out" can do so. The directory is also intended to serve the purpose of allowing students, and others, to contact each other, collaborate on research, share ideas, etc., so that they do not feel so isolated within the Division. And do not forget the Division Email listserver that already allows for direct student contact.

Membership Survey

In Toronto, I will host a discussion around the results of the survey which assists the Executive Committee in determining the Division's priorities for a three year period. The discussion will be held in the Division's hospitality suite at the Sheraton Hotel. This is a time for dialogue with the Executive Committee. We want your feedback and input in shaping the Division's policies. Also, Ron Fox and Sari Dworkin will host a discussion hour around the topic of inclusion of bisexuality in the Division's name and mission, also in the hospitality suite. Be sure to attend both discussion hours.

Volunteers

If you have volunteered for a committee or project, please don't get upset if no one has contacted you. As you know, we are all volunteers ourselves and time tends to be precious. Instead, please contact the committee or task force chair of the area in which you have an interest. Contact information is provided throughout this newsletter. As for me, I prefer Email but don't mind letters or phone calls. Email allows me to respond quickly and I am less likely to "put it aside" until later.

New Members!

On behalf of the Executive Committee, let me formally welcome you into the Division! It has been my intention to send every new member a welcoming letter but the press of time, and the fact that my database manager quit in January, did not allow for the letters to be sent. Now that I have found a new database manager, I hope to fulfill my goal of sending a personal welcome letter. In any case, we are glad to have you as a member and trust that you will stay with us over the years as we promote the goals of the Division, i.e., the priorities set by the membership via the membership survey (conducted every three years). Read this issue from cover to cover and you will gleen an excellent idea of what the Division is all about.

Address Changes

STUDENTS! Please let me know your new address as you complete your internship and other moves that may be required to complete your studies. The newsletter is now mailed by using a bulk mail permit which means the newsletter will not be forwarded to you. Only first class mail is forwarded. Keep me up to date and I will do the same for you. Just drop me an Email.

Reduced Housing in Toronto

The Division is pleased to have a member in Toronto who volunteered to uncover low cost housing for our members who wish to attend the APA convention but on a reduced budget. B.J. Rye has spent many hours calling and traveling around the city of Toronto and her list of affordable housing is printed elsewhere in this issue. I trust that many more members will be able to attend the convention because of her efforts. Thank you B.J.! If you see B.J. at the convention, be sure to thank her for the hard work.

Increasing Membership

Please share with me any ideas that might incite others to join, and stay with, the Division. We would like to have 2000 members by the year 2000 but at the rate we are going, we will still hover around the 1500 mark. Help us have more clout and influence by recruiting your friends to join.

Task Force on Bisexual Issues in Psychology

RON FOX AND SARI DWORKIN, Co-chairs

Division 44 will be sponsoring one symposium and two discussion hours on bisexual issues at this year's APA Convention in Toronto. A symposium on current research on bisexuality will be held on Friday, Aug. 11 at 1 PM. Sari Dworkin, of California State University Fresno, will present preliminary results of her study of bisexual women in the lesbian community. Joseph Stokes, of the University of Illinois at Chicago will present results of his research on sexual identity and behavior among Black and White bisexual men. We are also fortunate to have Ted Myers & Dan Allman, of the University of Toronto, who will discuss the current status of research on bisexuality in Canada. Perspectives on bisexual issues will also be present in other symposia, as well as in papers, posters, and workshops sponsored by several Divisions.

There will be a general discussion hour on bisexual issues once again in the Division 44 Hospitality Suite, hosted by Task Force Co-chairs Sari Dworkin and Ron Fox, offering members the opportunity to gather and talk. There will also be a discussion hour in the Hospitality Suite, hosted by incoming Division President Doug Haldeman, focusing on the interface of lesbian, gay, and bisexual issues and supporting the ongoing dialogue on the inclusion of bisexual issues in the Division.

The Task Force has been encouraged by the leadership that the Division 44 Executive Committee has shown in bringing this issue to the membership for discussion and consideration. We have also been encouraged by the support for greater inclusion shown by the results of the recent membership survey as well as by communications from Division members. We look forward to continuing the dialogue.

We will also have an updated and extended resource list on bisexuality and bisexual counseling issues available at the Convention, as well as by mail, in addition to the short resource list that we have had available for some time.

Youth and Family Task Force

STEVE JAMES AND KAREN JORDAN, Co-chairs JON LASSER, Student Co-chair

Both of the Task Force's 1996 symposiums will be presented during convention: "The Impact of Gender Concepts on Queer Families" will be on Sunday, August 11, at 2:00 in the Sheraton Centre Hotel (see convention program for location); and "Schools and Communities Respond to the Needs of Sexual Minority Youth" will be in the Division 44 Hospitality Suite (see the Division 44 Suite schedule for time). The "Schools and Communities Respond" symposium is our student panel for this year, with Jon Lasser, Craig Waldo, and David Whitcomb presenting.

In addition to co-sponsoring, with Division 43, the Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Film Festival (see the listings elsewhere in this newsletter), the Task Force will hold its annual meeting in the Hospitality Suite. Please refer to the Suite program for date and time. Dr. Jean Baker has graciously agreed to facilitate our strategic planning session during this year's meeting. At the annual meeting, we will begin planning the symposium proposals for the 1997 convention. Anyone interested in being part of that process should attend the meeting or contact Steve James (508) 463-9022. We are looking for students interested in presenting on relevant issues next year. Hopefully we will have enough to constitute another full student panel.

The Task Force is planning to meet during the convention with representatives from the Coalition for Services for Lesbian and Gay Youth, a group of social service agencies in Toronto. The meeting time and location will be posted in the Division 44 Hospitality Suite.

Bringing it All Together: Psychological Understandings of Sexual Orientation

Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Identities Over the Lifespan

Anthony D'Augelli & Charlotte Patterson, Eds. Oxford University Press, 416 pp., $39.95 list/$33.95 discount (cloth), $18.95 list/$16.00 discount (paper) hose of us who are interested in psychological aspects of lesbian/gay/bisexual (LGB) experience are in a paradoxical position. On the one hand, a burgeoning body of research and theory promises to enrich our understanding of the experience of LGBs. On the other hand, that scholarship is scattered through a variety of literatures both within and outside of psychology. The diversity of this work is a strength in that reflects the immense range of questions being addressed and of disciplines participating in this discourse. Yet the broad scope of this literature renders much of it inaccessible to most psychologists. A work that synthesizes and makes sense of this scholarship is welcome, indeed.

Reviewed by Janis S. Bohan

Anthony D'Augelli and Charlotte Patterson's book, Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Identities over the Lifespan, provides this much-needed synthesis and brings together a collection of chapters by scholars whose analyses are remarkably current and thoughtful. Themes addressed extend beyond identity in the usual sense. Chapter titles reflect the breadth of content explored: "Lesbian Identities: Concepts and Issues" (Laura Brown), "Gay Male Identities: Concepts and Issues" (John Gonsiorek), "Bisexual Identities" (Ronald Fox), "Issues of Sexual Identity in an Ethnic Minority: The Case of Chinese American Lesbians, Gay Men, and Bisexual People" (Connie Chan), "Biological Perspectives on Sexual Orientation" (Michael Bailey), "Social Constructionism: Implications for Gay and Lesbian Psychology" (Celia Kitzinger), "Lesbian, Gay Male, and Bisexual Adolescents" (Ritch Savin-Williams), "Lesbians and Gay Men in Midlife" (Douglas Kimmel & Barbara Sang), "Development in Late Life: Older Lesbian and Gay Lives" (James Reid), "Lesbian and Gay Couples" (Lawrence Kurdek), "Lesbian Mothers, Gay Fathers, and Their Children" (Charlotte Patterson), "Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Communities" (Anthony D'Augelli & Linda Garnets), "Psychological Heterosexism in the United States" (Gregory Herek), "The Impact of the HIV Epidemic on Gay Male Communities" (Jay Paul, Robert Hays, & Thomas Coates), and "Psychotherapy with Lesbians and Gay Men" (Kristin Hancock).

Chapter authors approach their respective topics differently. Some chapters are primarily theoretical analyses which are well grounded in empirical work, while others are reviews of extant research on the topic at hand. In general, the level of writing is appropriate for graduate level or above, and probably too advanced for undergraduate students. Although variations in style among authors make the chapters somewhat uneven, as is always true with collections of work, in this case the effect is to highlight further the richness possible in approaches to understanding LGB experience.

The book is also courageous in including a chapter by British psychologist, Celia Kitzinger. This chapter introduces the constructionist approach to sexual orientation, a perspective very little reflected in American psychology's dealings with sexual orientation. Constructionism challenges the common notion that sexual orientation is a fixed element of one's identity or core of one's sense of self that is discovered during the course of identity development. Rather, the very notion of sexual orientation as a trait and certainly as a trait definitive of identity — is seen as a construction, a situated understanding of phenomena that could be understood very differently. The implications of constructionism for psychological theory, research, and practice are significant and Kitzinger minces no words in pointing this out. Given that American psychology's approach to LGB experience and identity has been largely inattentive to the constructionist model, this chapter is important. It not only signals these editors' openness to a variety of positions but also points to directions that would be helpful to explore in the future.

In short, this book is an important contribution to LGB scholarship. Individual chapters are helpful as avenues of access to the state of knowledge in specific topic areas, and the volume as a whole provides a sound grounding in contemporary work exploring the psychology of sexual orientation.

PSYCHOSOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL FACTORS IN WOMEN'S HEALTH:

Research, Prevention, Treatment, and Service Delivery in Clinical and Community Settings Renaissance Hotel-Downtown * September 19-21, 1996 * Washington DC Continuing Education Workshops * September 18, 1996

Conference Objectives:

- To identify factors that promote effective clinical and community-based interventions and facilitate accurate risk perception, early detection, and the adoption and maintenance of health promoting behaviors among diverse populations of women;
- To critically examine the current systems and structures for health care services in women's health and to identify effective models for health care delivery;
- To present research findings and successful models which highlight features that improve service delivery and behavior change interventions in women's health care;
- To develop and promote strategies for information transfer among women's health researchers, health care providers, health educators, community outreach workers, health administrators, and women consumers;
- To identify effective psychological and behavioral interventions in women's health care which reduce psychological distress, improve quality of life and disease outcomes;
- To create a guide for developing effective health promotion/disease prevention programs, state-of-the-art community-based interventions, and programs for service delivery in women's health.

Registration: Registration fees postmarked on or before August 1, 1996 are $225 for attendees and presenters and $95 for students. After this date, regular registration is $275 and $125 for students. For additional information and registration materials contact: Women's Health Conference, American Psychological Association, Women's Programs Office, 750 First Street, NE, Washington, DC 20002-4242; Phone: (202)336-6070; Fax: (202)336-6117; Email: whc.apa@email.apa.org

Social Science Role in HIV Prevention

Communities Seek Local Partners for HIV Prevention Community Planning

In 1993, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) radically changed the manner in which HIV prevention activities are planned and funded in America. The CDC's new process, HIV Prevention Community Planning, requires that health departments and communities work together to develop scientifically sound prevention plans that reflect the documented needs and values of affected communities. To date, approximately 200 community planning groups exist at state and local levels.

Why is Behavioral Science Expertise Needed?

The increased need for behavioral science in assessing, prioritizing, and targeting HIV prevention programs has created a demand for psychologists in the community planning process. The inclusion of those who know research and theory but also possess the interest required to collaborate successfully with a diverse group is an important component of HIV prevention community planning. Input from proven needs assessment methods and scientifically derived models of behavior change can be of great assistance to prevention program planners.

What Would I Do?

Whether you act as an advisor to a community planning group or function as a full member, there are many arenas in which behavioral scientists can participate:

• Assessing risk behaviors, co-factors, community norms, and communication networks in affected populations

- Assessing community resources available for prevention efforts
- Translating and interpreting information on behavioral science theory and research pertaining to HIV prevention
- Incorporating sound behavioral science in decisionmaking associated with prioritization of possible interventions
- And much more!

Affected Populations

In their planning process, each CPG identifies and proposes effective interventions for specific populations within the community. CPG's are currently involved in assessing and addressing the prevention needs of people with AIDS: women; youth; commercial sex workers; homeless/runaway persons; injection drug users and others with substance use/abuse issues; people of color; men who have sex with men; incarcerated populations; persons with severe mental illness; and others.

Is This For Me?

Working as a scientist in one's own community isn't for everyone. It may be for you if the following apply:

- I believe behavioral science can make a difference in AIDS prevention.
- I like working with a diverse group of people.
- I want my knowledge and training to make a difference where I live.
- I've been looking for an opportunity to "give back" to my community.
- I like applying social science in a practical way.
- I want to join others in my community doing HIV/AIDS work.

How To Get Involved

Please contact Dawn Chin-Quee, Ph.D., Cristina Sevin, or Darryl Lampkin at the APA Office on AIDS. (Phone: 202-336-6188; Fax: 202-336-6198). Office on AIDS staff will provide you with an orientation about CDC's community planning initiative and send you a short questionnaire about your interests and areas of expertise. Together with CDC, the Academy for Educational Development (AED), and the National Alliance of State and Territorial AIDS Directors (NASTAD), AIDS Office staff will assist qualified scientists in establishing connections with CPGs in your area.

New York State of Mind

s lesbian, gay and bisexual groups within organized mental health disciplines grow and develop, it becomes increasingly important to keep the lines of communication open. This is true for two reasons: first, because we share many common goals and can benefit from joint collaboration on projects. Second, because the collegial support that comes from a working relationship with our colleagues in Psychiatry, Counseling, Social Work, Medicine, and other fields, serves as an important source of energy in achieving many goals that are in the interest of 1/g/b people everywhere. It was therefore with great enthusiasm that Robin Buhrke and I participated in a meeting held by the Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists (AGLP), which was held at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in New York City in early May.

David Scasta, MD, is the President of AGLP, and requested Division 44's collaboration on a public information project. The AGLP is developing a web page which will provide answers to commonly asked questions about homosexuality. The AGLP, with input from Division 44, NASW, PFLAG, and GLAMA (the Gay and Lesbian Medical Association), intends to create this web page as a source of unbiased, accurate information about sexual orientation in an accessible, confidential format. It is hoped that this format will be particularly useful for adolescents dealing with questions of sexual orientation, as well as to parents and other interested parties.

The psychiatrists were excellent hosts while we were in New York, and it was very exciting to see the wide range of projects and areas of interest with which the AGLP is currently engaged. The meeting also marked the publication of an important new volume, Textbook of Mental Health and Homosexuality, edited by Robert Cabaj and Terry Stein. This compendium, which includes a number of contributions from psychologists, is truly state of the art thinking on a wide range of mental health issues facing lesbians, gay men, bisexuals, and transgendered individuals, and is well worth investigating at your library or bookstore.

Teaching Lesbian Gay and Bisexual Psychology

Contemporary Strategies and Media Resources for Teaching Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Psychology

APA DIVISION 44 PRE-CONVENTION WORKSHOP Toronto, Ontario, Canada August 8, 1996 12:30-5:00PM

Workshop Description: This workshop is designed to examine the administrative, pedagogical, and content issues specific to Lesbian/Gay/Bisexual (LGB) psychology courses with an emphasis on the unique dynamics of the classroom experience. Designed to be interactive, this workshop will include group discussion and the demonstration of experiential exercises. Participants will receive an updated LGB bibliography and a current multi-media resource list. This workshop will take into account a wide range of participant needs including those relevant to faculty and graduate students experienced in teaching LGB courses and those considering teaching such courses for the first time.

The Miniconvention has the following aims:

- to compare and contrast sexual orientation with other aspects of human diversity to promote research and the social impact of research;
- to improve psychological services in health care settings, organizations, and schools;
- to educate psychologists and other professionals;
- to bring the scientific perspective on sexual orientation to the attention of the public and policymakers.

The Public Interest Directorate extends its gratitude to the Board for the Advancement of Psychology in the Public Interest, and to Divisions 35, 44, and 51 for donating program time to the Directorate for the Miniconvention, as well as to all the Divisions, Committees, and individuals who have contributed to the Miniconvention.

The Miniconvention on Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns in Psychology includes programs sponsored by the Divisions of Developmental Psychology (7), History of Psychology (26), Psychology of Women (35), Psychoanalysis (39), Family Psychology (43), the Psychological Study of Lesbian and Gay Issues (44), the Psychological Study of Ethnic Minority Issues (45), Exercise and Sport Psychology (47), and the Psychological Study of Men and Masculinity (51), as well as programs sponsored by the Committee on Disability Issues in Psychology, the Committee on International Relations in Psychology (presenters from Costa Rica, Korea, Puerto Rico, and the Netherlands), the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns, and the Committee on Psychology and AIDS. Invited addresses feature presenters from the arts, economics, medicine, politics and sociology.

APA Public Interest Directorate and Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns Program:

The APA Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns Program has worked since 1975 to eliminate the stigma of mental illness long associated with same-sex sexual orientation, and to reduce prejudice, discrimination, and violence against lesbian and gay people. Major functions of the Program include staff support to the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns, and liaison with the Society for the Psychological Study of Lesbian and Gay Issues (Division 44), dissemination of psychological knowledge, policy advocacy, and consultation with psychologists and others.

The Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Concerns Program is housed in the APA Public Interest Directorate which works to advance psychology as a means of promoting human welfare. Other programs within the Public Interest Directorate work on issues related to AIDS, children, youth and families, ethnic minorities, disability, violence, and women.

Textbook of Homosexuality and Mental Health

Edited by Robert P. Cabaj, M.D., and Terry S. Stein, M.D.

"This important volume gathers some of the finest researchers, theorists, and therapists to write about a topic which all mental health professionals must understand. It is a wonderful introduction as well as a thoughtful treatise on topics related to homosexuality." Dee Mosbacher, M.D., Ph.D.

President, Woman Vision Film Company
Past Mental Health Director, San Manteo County
Filmmaker, Academy Awards Nominee Straight
From The Heart

Textbook of Homosexuality and Mental Health brings together in one volume the entire range of material and variety of perspectives concerning homosexuality and mental health. With more than 50 chapters written by leaders in the field, this book is the most complete review of the topics of homosexuality and mental health and treatment of gay men, lesbians, bisexuals, and transsexuals to date.

The clinical and theoretical richness contained in this volume makes it an accessible and invaluable reference for clinicians and the general public alike. Chapters complement each other while providing enough information to be useful if read on their own.

Therapists on the Front Line: Psychotherapy With Gay Men in the Age of AIDS

Edited by Steven A. Cadwell, Ph.D., Robert A. Burnham, Jr., Ph.D., and Marshall Forstein, M.D.

"At last, a comprehensive guide to working with this distinct and often neglected population. This book, with its multidimensional approach to specific treatment concerns, will be an asset to psychotherapists of all traditions."

READINGS: A Journal of Reviews and Commentary in Mental Health

Despite lessening media attention, AIDS is still the leading cause of death among gay men in the United States. Although research and medical discoveries are producing vast amounts of biological information, less is known about the complex psychosocial pattern involved in preventing transmission of HIV, or about coping with the diagnosis of HIV infection and the development of disease.

Therapists on the Front Line: Psychotherapy With Gay Men in the Age of AIDS explores how the AIDS epidemic has affected psychotherapists, their patients, and the therapeutic relationship. The book uses a multidimensional approach that includes psychodynamic, social, cultural, medical, and political factors.

Neill-Wycik College Hotel

96 Gerrard Street East, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, M5B 1G7

Telephone: (416) 977-2320 (In Canada and Northeastern US: 1-800-268-4358)

Fax: (416) 977-2809

If you want to do Toronto really cheaply, I recommend the Neill-Wycik College Hotel. This is a residence (i.e., dormitory-style) located in the heart of downtown Toronto and in the midst of the "gay ghetto" (i.e., very near Church Street — the place to be). The season lasts from May 4 to Aug 26 and the rates are:

Regular Rates	Student
$33.04	$26.79
$44.64	$37.50
$44.64	$37.50
$ 48.21	$40.18
$50.00
	$33.04 $44.64 $44.64 $48.21

Extra Rollaway bed: $15.00 (but this will not fit in the double, twin, or single rooms.)

*Student rates with valid identification or Hostel Cards. Full breakfasts are available starting from $4.00. All rates are quoted in Canadian Funds. Taxes have not been included (so add another 15%). All reservations must be confirmed with a credit card (Visa/ Mastercard) and you must provide 24 hours cancellation notice. 24 hour front desk service, linen, towels, daily housekeeping, and round-the-clock security are provided, along with a TV lounge, Sauna, "Kafe Freja," and 3 roof-top decks. There are shared washroom facilities. No air conditioning. Walking distance from the conference sites (approximately 20 minutes) but also on the subway (2 block walk from subway station).

Bed and Breakfasts in Toronto Amblecote Bed and Breakfast, 109 Walmer Road, Toronto, M5R 2X8 Telephone: (416) 927-1713. Hosts: Paul Gravett and Mark Hand (and a cat and a dog). This "rambling historic home in English Cottage style" is not terribly close to the American Psychological Convention sites, however, it is very close to 2 subway stations which would take visitors to the sites.

Rates: Single ($55), Double ($60),
Queen ($65)

This is a non-smoking house. Parking on the premises. Access to the drawing room with grand piano, and the dining room where continental breakfasts are served on weekdays and full breakfasts on weekend. The house was built in 1904. The Globe and Mail has described the house as a "late-Arts and Crafts showpiece ... the craftsman-like esthetic values of the Middle Ages".

GREAT NEWS: Canada's Federal Government recently passed legislation to include sexual orientation in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms as a prohibited grounds for discrimination. While Ontario's Provincial Charter prohibited discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, the Federal Government offered no such protection — until now. Very exciting!

Malyon-Smith Scholarship Award:

We received more proposals this year than ever before for the 1996 Scholarship Award. This is a very important source of funding for graduate students doing research in Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual issues. The need is great and our fund is small! Please help the fund grow. If each member made a tax deductible contribution of $25, we would establish a fund which will support LGB psychology research in perpetuity. Your contribution today (regardless of how small or large) will be greatly appreciated. Please write a check in the name of "Malyon-Smith Scholarship Award" and send to:

The M.S.Ed. Program in Psychological Services at the University of Pennsylvania announces a new concentration in Applied Community Psychology. The one-year masters concentration will focus on the provision of psychological services via the role of context, sociocultural diversity, and resilience. Gay/ lesbian/bisexual candidates are encouraged to apply. For more information, please call (215) 898-4610. Applications will soon be accepted for Fall, 1997.

ATTENTION STUDENTS! It is not too late to reserve a space in the Division 44 Hospitality Suite. If you would like to stay at the suite at the Sheraton Centre this year in Toronto, please contact Craig Waldo via Email (cwaldo@s.psych.uiuc.edu) or telephone (217-244-8349) for more information or to reserve a place.

LOOKING FOR PREGNANT LESBI-ANS! Are you part of or do you know a lesbian couple trying to get pregnant, currently pregnant or pregnant during the past year? I am a doctoral candidate in clinical psychology beginning my dissertation research on the experience of pregnancy for lesbian couples and its impact on relationships. If you or anyone you know might be interested in participating, please call Nancy Friedman (collect) at (201)798-5429.
